RATIONING GOES ON

It is taking the government longer than most housewives had hoped to get rid of food rationing. But Secretary of Agriculture Anderson's disclosure that red point rationing will be continued at least until the end of November will not be considered by most people a particularly heavy blow.

Enough wartime controls have been lifted so that the pinch is no longer particularly painful. If choice cuts of beef, pork and lamb are still scarce and high in points, a wide variety of other cuts of meat is available. Poultry is no longer scarce. In fact, producers are threatened with an unmanageable surplus. The only place where the rationing shoe fit painfully tight in recent weeks was in butter, the red point value of which has now been reduced.

Of course, it is the duty of government to remove the last of the ration controls at the earliest possible moment. Stories of starvation in Europe have less and less appeal. Americans do not intend to continue donating hundreds of millions of dollars worth of food to Europe forever. If Europeans would eat in the future, they must produce.

Point values already have been lowered so much on many commodities that rationing is little more than a formality. The end of the war and the knowledge that the whole ration set-up will fold up in a few more weeks or months are multiplying the difficulties of enforcing the rules. There is a growing suspicion that the reason OPA officials are not saying goodbye to good rationing is that they like their present connection with the federal payroll.

EXPLODED THEORY

Shifting of population to larger centers because of war's necessities was expected to work permanent hardship upon smaller cities and towns. Some of the more pessimistic declared it would result in the wiping out of many smaller communities as their former inhabitants became permanently enamored of advantages presumed to go with metropolitan living.

But with war ended only a few months there is evidence that practically every one of the communities expected to suffer from loss of population is enjoying a building and business boom. Much interest is being shown in locations for business in practically every community, large and small. The so-called small towns and city, always the backbone of social and economic progress, will become more important in the economic scheme of the future.

Today's Quiet Moment

By Rev. Bickley Burns Brodhead
Pastor of Bensalem Methodist Church

Almighty God, our help in ages past and hope for years to come, we would think of others. Teach us afresh that we live not unto ourselves, that we are our brother's keeper. Make us instruments of thy love to bring hope into their despair, food for their hunger, faith for their indifference and doubts. And may our lives be lived as ever unto Thee, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Even though many articles of food are coming back to the store counter, every woman who "goes to market" for the family provisions still has plenty of problems.

Well, the same problems are with us in the restaurant business, often on a much greater scale. Many items are still scarce and the best merchandise, in many cases, is not yet available.

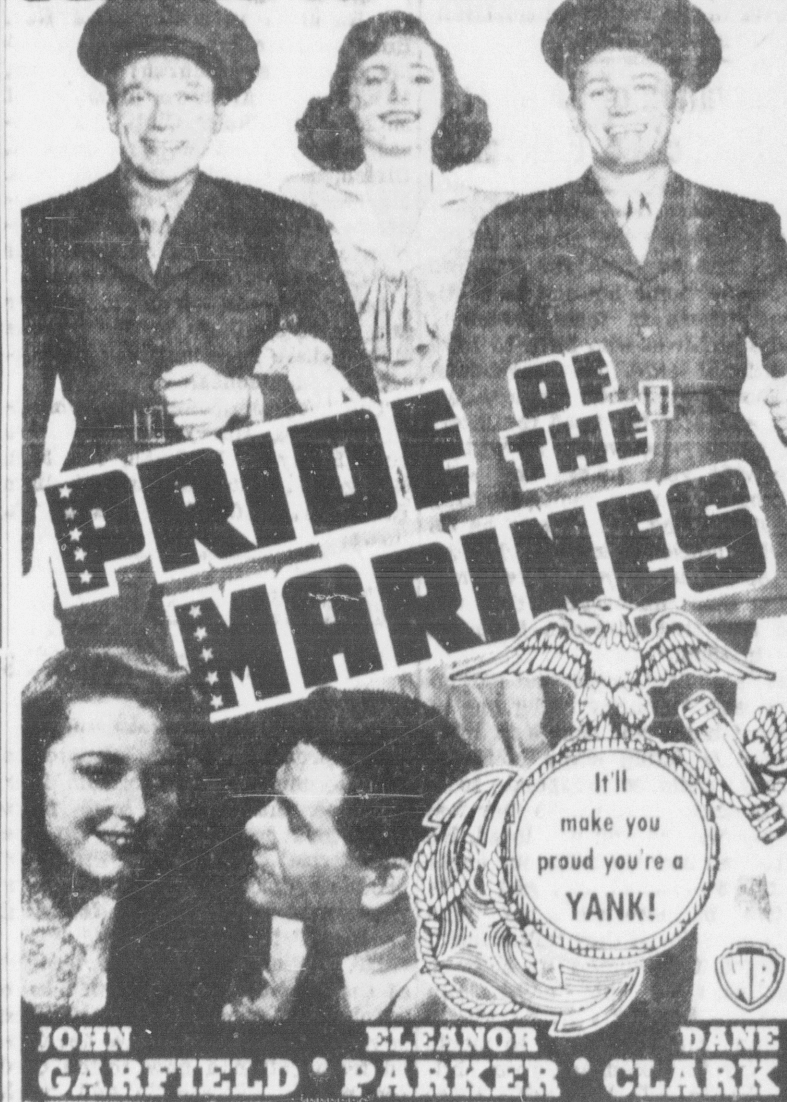

When it is, we'll have it!

BENSALEM SNAPS LOSING STREAK AND WINS EASILY

Cornwells Heights Boys Defeat Southampton By Score of 33 to 0

HANSON SCORES TWO

One of Hanson's Touchdowns Was Run Through Center for 55 Yards

SOUTHAMPTON, Oct. 27.—After losing five straight games, Bensalem High broke into the win column yesterday afternoon, trimming Southampton High, 33-0, on the Southampton field.

The Owls had little difficulty in scoring on Claude Lodge's boys, and the five touchdowns were made by Hanson, who scored two, Kleha, Abe and Laster.

Hansen converted two of the extra points while Abe made the other. One of Hansen's touchdowns was a run through the center of the Southampton line for 55 yards. A long pass, Hansen to Farenio, was completed for 45 yards in the second quarter, Farenio being stopped on the four-yard line. Hansen then carried the ball over.

The Southies could do little with the Bensalem line and it was only in the final period after Coach Bixler sent in his reserves that they were able to come within twenty yards of the Bensalem goal line.

Conservation of Youth Is Subject of Co. Federation

conomic inventory of items in the house; The services for children outside the home but not in institutions (those in foster homes); and the children who have to have institutional care. In considering the group in foster homes, Dr. Sharp spoke of the need for interested adults who would be willing to provide real homes for such children—"not as a money-making proposition, and not merely as an aid with house-work, but with the view of moulding young lives and making them understand they are loved and that someone is interested in them."

The "security" angle was strongly stressed, "security being one of the most important things in life," the speaker citing many incidents whereby children respond to a healthy atmosphere where they feel they are wanted and are loved. He pointed out how the religious angle is often overlooked, one girl of 14 inquiring of those about her "Who is this man Christ they talk about?" He urged the women to show a friendliness for the "child from across the tracks." . . . "A kindly word and a smile means so much. Don't try to discourage your children from mingling with those from 'across the tracks' just on general principles. Where else will such children learn about decent things but from you? Many of these children are hungry for love."

High standards, the "blueprints" which the child follows as seen in the adult, were emphasized; likewise discipline. "If a child respects you, out of that you have discipline for discipline is born respect. . . . If we make sure the child has love and discipline his future happiness and well-being are secured."

A total attendance of 112 was listed for the day by Mrs. William H. Henry, registrar, the clubs represented being: Warrington, Bristol Travel Club, Perkaskie, Yardley, New Hope, Mafekfield, Buckingham, Southampton, Langhorne, Quakertown, Newtown, Morrisville; and the two Doylestown clubs, the Village Improvement Association and the Nature Club.

The women also heard during the afternoon, Miss A. M. Roos representing the National Board of Girl Scouts. The speaker was introduced after the federation voted to donate its $100 of welfare money to the Girl Scout movement. Miss Roos considered "Your Own Daughter and Your Neighbor's Daughter." In citing the advantages the girls gain in their Scout activities she mentioned discipline, ability to get along with others, the building of resources, learning the art of living, appreciation of music, handicraft, etc. These were brought out as she gave a mother's testimony of gratitude for the Girl Scouts, this particular mother stating that her daughter was learning much from her "contemporaries," adding that through her group associations she would learn to show cheerfulness and serenity when she felt neither cheerful nor serene. The young woman informed that although a million girls are learning to prepare themselves for the future through scouting there are a million more who would like the opportunity, but who are deprived of the chance due to insufficient number of adult leaders. A plea was made that the women manifest interest in their own families and circle of friends, be prepared to serve as counsellors or in other capacities; and each was urged to have their "mind set" in favor of making possible an organization of Girl Scouts in their community.

During the afternoon the junior chorus and the junior high school glee club pleased with numbers. The younger girls and boys sang "Thanksgiving Hymn" and "The Marriage of Ceban;" and the older girls "When I Was 17," "I Love Thee," "Fly Now, O Song I'm Singing," and "Toyland."

Mrs. Landis named as members of the nominating committee: Mrs. William Fabian, Newtown; Mrs. Robb, Southampton; and Mrs. William B. Moyer, Perkaskie. The courtesy gesture was in charge of Mrs. William J. Kelly.

During the morning hours Mrs. Edward R. S. Tull, of Drexel Hill, president of Delaware County Federation, spoke briefly. She reported on the address of Mrs. Dickinson, General Federation president, at the meeting of the Delaware County on Thursday. Mrs. William B. Moyer, reporting on scholarship, read letters from Miss Shirley Kinsey, Quakertown, and Miss Ruth L. Nagele, Doylestown, recipients of fund benefits.

"Consumer Responsibility" was the subject of Mrs. Richard Pollock, of Glenside, state war services chairman; and remarks were made by Mrs. Harold R. Bodkie, South-eastern District vice-president.

Other morning numbers were: Group songs, led by Mrs. Warren F. Beitsch, and accompanied by Mrs. Robert Kenderline, Newtown; pledge to flag, led by Mrs. George W. Robbins; invocation, the Rev. Robert H. Walker, pastor of Yardley Methodist Church; welcome, Mrs. Charles A. Rowe, president of Mafekfield Mothers' Club, the hostess group; response, Mrs. John N. Ulrich, Morrisville; minutes, Mrs. Harry T. Neher, Bristol; treasurer's report, Mrs. Casimir A. Sloniewicz, Doylestown; "Suggestions for Club Year," county chairman.

Luncheon was served to officers and guest speakers by the hostess club; others in attendance partaking of box lunches. The program committee consisted of: Mrs. Harry Williams, Jr., Mrs. Harry S. Hoffman, Jr., Mrs. George W. Robbins, Mrs. William H. Rorer, and Mrs. Charles A. Rowe.

Tells of New Uses For Surplus Foods

tural products. "The discoveries and accomplishments of the four research laboratories have more than paid for themselves in the commercial values of the new products discovered and the new uses found for surplus agricultural products," it was stated.

Dr. Willaman gave an account of the new discoveries which have reached the commercial stage. The southern laboratories have developed from cotton a new cotton cord for use in automobile and truck tires. A new physical technique of weaving certain cotton fibres has produced a serviceable flexible bandage that was of great aid to the Medical Corps.

At the western laboratories a new product called Velya-Fruit has been developed. This product makes use of various surplus fruits which are changed to a pure form and mixed with gelatin and other products in the processing, to produce a product which is coming into widespread use.

A new jellied fruit dessert was produced for the Army and more than 22 million cans were used in the first half year after its introduction.

Dehydrated vegetables which saved invaluable shipping space were also developed at the western laboratories. "These products are far above those used during the first World War. Mashed potatoes are perhaps the most successful of the dehydrated vegetables produced or processed."

Dr. Willaman continued: "At the northern laboratories where emphasis is placed upon bacteriology, the famous drug (penicillin) was successfully carried from the experimental stage to practical use in the medical field. Its discovery was made by two British scientists, but due to the war, they came to the United States where their discoveries were carried on to completion with the co-operation of the northern laboratories."

"The common corn cob was found to be of use for the Air Corps as a cleansing product to clean airplane motors. The finely shredded cobs were substituted for sand in a blasting process with no danger to the motor or parts.

"Milk, which in some cases is a surplus product due to faults in distribution, can be used to develop many products. The lactic acid is recovered from the milk and by chemical processes, we produce the acrolates which are the basis of many of our plastics. "From the common potato an allyl ether was obtained from the starch, and from this allyl a new varnish or finish for wood has been developed that is superior in many ways to other products."

Among the developments was the manufacture of apple candy to such a degree that the type of apples used can be detected in the taste of the finished candy. The speaker had samples of an apple candy with him which was made by this new process. Members found it so tasty that they came back for second and third helpings.

Deplores Neglected Homes, and Divorces and Teachers at the Doylestown Inn on Thursday.

Mrs. Yarnall placed emphasis on a child being well prepared for life when he first enters school, adding that "so much depends on the parents." Mrs. Yarnall is past-president of the Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers. The increased divorce rate and the employed mothers who neglect their homes and children were deplored by the speaker.

The meeting, attended by 60 persons representing 15 parent-teacher associations from all parts of the county, was featured by a dinner, and this was the first time the county organization attempted to hold a dinner-meeting.

Opening ceremonies were in charge of the organization's president, Mrs. Samuel C. Jefferson, Pineville, a member of the Buckingham Parent-Teacher Association. The welcome and the invocation were by Dr. Charles F. Freeman.

With Mrs. Frank X. Shelley as accompanist, Mrs. William S. Mason rendered two vocal solos. Mrs. Yarnall spoke on schools of instructions for parent-teacher associations, and before outlining the six objectives as submitted by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers stated that parent-teacher associations are non-racial, non-partisan, non-sectarian and non-interfering.

Mrs. Yarnall commented upon the importance of physical fitness of the child. Sound bodies, she said, lead to sound minds, and an English theme, it was said, is no more important than an hour of play and recreation on the play-ground.

The third point brought out by Mrs. Yarnall related to better schools and better teachers. She commented upon the improved program in Pennsylvania, both in reference to teacher training and the equalization program in the schools. The program, the members were told, has made great strides for the better during the past few years.

Good citizenship was the fourth point developed by Mrs. Yarnall, who emphasized the importance of exercising the right of franchise. The fifth point was culture, and in this connection she said understanding parents are cultural parents. "Only spiritual values will make a better world. As nations and states have no spirit, the improved conditions will have to depend upon the individual."

The last point upon which Mrs. Yarnall commented had to do with greater unity, both from a national and international point of view. "Any good that can come from this war and any assurance of peace means that we must live as one large family," she stated.

Mass Meeting To Open Victory Loan Drive

A mass meeting is planned at Bristol War Finance Committee headquarters, McCrory's store, Mill street, when the Victory Loan drive opens on Monday.

The fire sirens in both Bristol and Edgely will blow at 11 a. m., for the opening of the Victory Loan drive.

At 10:30, the Bristol High School band will leave the high school and march down Pond street to arrive at 11 o'clock. The public is invited.

Inside the McCrory building there will be singing of "America," followed by invocation by the Rev. W. C. Carroll; welcome, expressed by Mrs. John Leslie Kilcoyne. The speaker will be Paul J. Barrett, Esq., former lieutenant in the U. S. Navy. Words of appreciation will be expressed by A. H. Queen, manager of the McCrory store. J. Edward Bloesinger, Bucks County war loan chairman, will give the quotas for Bensalem and Bristol areas. There will be remarks by Burgess Jacob C. Schmidt, Sr. "The Star Spangled Banner" will be sung and followed by benediction by the Rev. Fr. Peter Pinci, rector of St. Ann's Church.

The chairmen and their co-workers are asked to attend so that after the program they can secure their materials to start their work. The faculty of Bristol public schools held a meeting in Washington street school on Wednesday, in preparation for the Victory loan drive.

Teachers attending were: Harri-man building—Mabel W. Staley, Doris Gerlitz, Ida Phipps Runyon, Grace Shaver Brehm, Jane N. Mannherz, Verna R. Miller; Jefferson—Annie M. Heritage, Bertha Ruth, Sarah D. Smith, Doris P. Fard, Evelyn Stone, Alice B. Palmer, Jesse M. Mansell, Irene K. Paulus, Audrey H. Utz, Marian D.

Ward; Washington—Katharine Beck, Rhoda M. Abbott, Wood-Jane W. Rogers, Molly P. Duffy, Clara E. King, Grace H. Haas, Elizabeth R. Slater, Mary A. Wilkinson; Bath—Marian H. Fleming, Marian W. Reinke, Rena S. Cauch, Elva C. Cruse, Clara L. Blitz, Helen B. Fine.

Mrs. John Leslie Kilcoyne, chairman of Lower Bucks County War Finance Committee, addressed the teachers. Mrs. Kilcoyne acknowledged their co-operation in the last drive, and said she felt sure they were all willing to continue to finish the job. The speaker said: "The War Finance Committee acknowledges that it was through the efforts of the teachers and their pupils that Bristol made its quota in 'E' bonds in the Seventh War Loan Drive. Mr. Buck, manager of the Bristol Theatre, has advised me that the Bristol Theatre will again have a matinee for the children who purchase or sell at least one Victory Bond."

There will also be a first prize given to the child selling the greatest amount of victory bonds to separate subscribers during the accounting period of the Victory Loan Drive, October 29 through December 8, and also to the child whose sales total the largest amount of money. In addition to these prizes, there will be others for the runners-up.

The Great Game of Politics

son as having said that prior to the arrangement the labor leaders had been "indifferent and unfriendly" and it further failed to state that neither the United Mine Workers of America nor the Railroad Brotherhoods were parties to the agreement; that both these organizations for years had measured up to every Red Cross requirement in every Red Cross campaign without being reimbursed a cent; that both have written letters of protest and that Mr. John L. Lewis, one of the Red Cross incorporators, wrote that he had no knowledge of such an arrangement and was "dumb-founded" when it was disclosed.

THE reply insists that the arrangement was not "kept secret." This is only partially true. It is true that the National War Fund, the Red Cross and the CIO did send out in voluminous detail announcement and instructions to officials, but the full picture was not given. This is attested by the ignorance of so large a portion of the Red Cross officials, workers and friends.

It is attested by correspondence between Chairman Davis and a protesting central committee member who wrote "that this agency has not been made public carries its own condemnation." It is still further attested by the fact that the Emerson report was never made public. The reply does not state that for the past two weeks letters of protest have been pouring in from all parts of the country and that opposition is due not so much to the sum "reimbursed" but to the conviction that the Red Cross should not have to reimburse any agency that in reimbursing these exceedingly rich agencies a bad precedent has been established.

THERE is here no suggestion that either labor organization has done anything sinister in this matter or is not on the level and well-intentioned. A plausible case can be made out—but not proved—that the arrangement has worked well all around. But that is not the point. The point is that in Red Cross history this is the first time it has ever contacted in advance to reimburse any co-operating agency. That, in the view of many Red Cross people, is deplorable.

They contend the Red Cross is too noble an organization to be placed in a position it has to defend or explain. This seems such a position. Mr. Perlis, of the CIO, has said that the Red Cross can retreat from it any time it wants. It would seem wise for the Red Cross to avail itself of this privilege before its next campaign.

Can Eradicate "TB" In U. S. by Year 2000

unit, at the Doylestown Country Club, and it came from the lips of one of America's outstanding authorities, Dr. W. A. Doppler, of New York City, director of the Industrial Relations Service for the NTA. The guest speaker is also a fellow of the American Public Health Association, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the American Adult Education Association.

The 25th anniversary dinner was a banner event in every detail, with the president, Dr. A. J. Strathie, of Newtown, presiding, and many of the officers and directors of the association in attendance. In addition to Dr. Doppler, there was an excellent address on the "Beginnings of the Christmas Seal" by Leigh Mitchell Hodges, of Doylestown, a past president of the association. Greetings were also extended by Arthur M. Dewees, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society.

"Dr. Doppler pictured the year 2000 and said: 'The kids in the kindergarten of today are going to be sitting around the fireplace 55 years from now . . . and what are they going to say? They are going to say, 'our parents did a great job in planning to wipe out tuberculosis . . . or they are going to say, 'they were stupid in not planning ahead after World War No. 2, and that's why TB is rampant today.'" Dr. Doppler brought greetings from the National Association and at the start of his address said that "it was with humility that he followed such an excellent speaker as Past President Hodges."

He issued a warning in his talk that every precaution must be taken immediately to properly combat TB among the 50,000 brides who are now preparing to come to the United States to be with their ex-soldier husbands. Many of these are coming from England, he said.

"Out of this group of 50,000 girls, 250 will have TB in the active stage," Dr. Doppler declared. "These girls are to be X-rayed under the mass X-ray system, and any signs of TB in the individuals will mean the proper notification of the individual's physician for further advice."

Dr. Doppler pointed out that TB is an insidious disease possessing a slow microbe development. The advent of the rapid X-ray camera—the screening system—is going to be a great help however, the speaker pointed out. This system is to be announced from Washington in the near future, and it is something new in TB work.

The importance of "keeping up to date" in the fight against TB was emphasized by Dr. Doppler, who said: "If you have done things the same way for five years, it's high time to put it under the microscope and see if it's right thing to do."

"Our TB progress today must be parent-progress," he continued. "TB is no longer an infant proposition only. The dangerous age for TB among men is from 45 to 50 while the danger age among women is from 18 to 30."

"With all the science and progress that we have made up until this time, TB still knows no cure whatsoever—out of a medicine bottle. We can operate, sew up, build up and arrest a case, but there it ends. The prevention of TB is the answer to wiping it out for all time."

"Many of our boys are coming home from foreign shores with the type TB that has been contracted from drinking milk from tubercular cattle. In no country in the world has progress been made in fighting TB like we have made in the United States. Here in the USA, bovine tuberculosis is licked. But it is far from licked in foreign countries. Therefore many of our boys are coming home with TB and we have an additional work to do."

"With bovine TB licked let's now find the human germ, the spreader of the germ and have that person segregated."

"I am happy to officially announce tonight that the United States went through World War No. 2 without an increase in TB. In fact we had but 54,000 deaths during the last year compared to 67,000 the year before. "For that reason, and because of the continued progress we are making it is simply a mathematical problem to figure out that by 2000, TB will be eradicated in the United States."

Dr. Doppler, in answer to a question said that he was absolutely opposed to a theory that we need legislation in this country to segregate the TB patients. "It is a question of education; not the Sheriff," he said.

The start of TB was traced by Mr. Hodges in his splendid address, from the time of Hippocrates—the father of medicine, and the discoverer of TB.

"The disease kept on killing people until about 300 years ago a Dutch doctor discovered something to help," Mr. Hodges said. "Then an English doctor and French doctor made other discoveries, until 170 years ago a French physician invented the stethoscope as a result of a falsely modest young French woman who refused to have her chest examined by the physician."

"In 1871, a young German doctor developed the high-powered microscope and in 1882 in Berlin the discovery of tubercular bacilli as a result of the X-ray that was discovered by a Dutchman, was announced."

"In 1900 tuberculosis was killing one out of every eight people in the world, and it was still thought incurable at that time . . . it was still looked upon as an act of God, that simply happened to a certain number of persons every year."

"On the morning of December 11, 1907, in this country alone the death rate for TB was 180 out of every 10,000 deaths. On that particular morning there came to my office in the Philadelphia North American Building in Philadelphia, a Miss Emma K. Bissel from Wilmington, with the first 100 Christmas Seals to be sold to secure funds to fight TB and prevent the disease."

President Strathie recalled that the first Christmas Seal sale was launched in Bucks County in 1920 with the two slogans, "Health Makes for Happiness," and "Health education exceeds charity."

He presented Executive Secretary Dewees, who gave an interesting resume of the history of the Bucks county unit. He also extended the greetings of the Pennsylvania TB Society and the National Association.

In 1918, Mr. Dewees pointed out, Bucks county had two community committees at Doylestown and Quakertown. In addition seals were sold in Bristol, Chalfont, Morrisville, New Hope, Perkaskie, Southampton and Sellersville.

On December 11, 1918, a public meeting was held in the Court House, Doylestown, for the purpose of organizing the Bucks county unit, with Dr. E. E. Pownell, of Richboro, as president, and Mrs.

Mary L. Blackfan, of Newtown, as secretary. By 1920 the society employed Henry W. Grahn as its own field worker.

In 1921 Dr. William S. Erdman succeeded Dr. Pownell as president. Then came Harold H. Keller, of Doylestown, as the next president, followed by Leigh Mitchell Hodges, who Executive Secretary Dewees described as "that good angel of the entire voluntary tuberculosis organization." Then came the president head of the society, Dr. Strathie.

Mr. Dewees paid a fine tribute to Mrs. Emma C. Stover, of Doylestown, executive secretary and manager of the program of services of the Bucks county society, who to a great extent is entirely responsible for the winning fight against TB in Bucks county, and for the fine 25th anniversary birthday program.

The Bucks county unit, Mr. Dewees pointed out is one of the many voluntary tuberculosis organizations in Pennsylvania that are participating in the mass chest X-raying of people employed in industry and in other ways.

MORE MEN DISCHARGED

Indiantown Gap's discharge list of yesterday includes the following names: Lt. John M. Keenan, Doylestown; Cpl. Robert J. Ryan, Jr., Jefferson avenue, Sgt. George Rusnak, Trenton avenue, Bristol; Sgt. Frank H. Sodano, South Langhorne; T/4 Joseph G. Hughes, Morrisville; Pfc. Michael Kadera, New Hope.

GIVEN PARTY

A party was given in honor of Joseph V. Missera, S. 1/c, who returned to his Beaver street home Tuesday after receiving his honorable discharge. He was stationed on the U. S. S. "Arkansas" and took part in the invasion of Normandy, Southern France and Cherbourg, two Jima and Okinawa. He spent 19 months overseas.

Silvio Clotti provided accordion selections. Dancing was enjoyed and refreshments served. Anthony Missera, a brother of Joseph, and Francis Missera, another brother, sang.

Mr. and Mrs. Missera also celebrated their ninth wedding anniversary on Thursday. Mrs. Missera received many gifts including a bouquet of red roses from her husband.

pride and pleasure." It is one of the most splendid things that has been done for this town. The planning committee has a golden opportunity to do something for all of us. It is hard to find words to express appreciation for the gift. I think Mr. Grundy deserves credit for his foresightedness in thinking of the people of Bristol. And I'm sure they are all grateful for his generosity. It is surely one of the nicest things that has ever happened to any community, and I've lived in a number of them."

Mrs. Robert Moss, president of Bristol Chapter, American War Mothers, is "sure the public will appreciate the gift. And I know the rest of the 'War Mothers' agree that it is a very nice thing."

Arthur P. Brady, Justice of the Peace: "May I be permitted to express, through your columns, my sincere thanks and deep appreciation to Senator Joseph R. Grundy for the most generous civic gift placing, at the disposal of the Borough authorities, grounds for a recreation centre and an athletic field for the future youth of this town."

"Everybody in Bristol should take a genuine community pride in the development of this wonderful objective and in ever keeping alive in the hearts of our townspeople what it will ever stand for: a memorial to those who gave us their all for the country they love and the principles for which the magic word 'America' stands."

"May God bless the spirit which made this gift possible."

missioners in co-operation with various other county officials, under a complicated set of legal requirements, and by a series of steps intended to see that the best and most representative citizens of the community are available to sit as jurors in the cases where the rights of the individual and the best interest of the public are to be determined.

Lester D. Thorne, of Bristol, who has had long experience in this work, has been nominated by the Republicans of Bucks County to succeed himself as Jury Commissioner.

The two candidates named in this article fully deserve your support and vote on November 6.

The easiest and best way to give them your vote, to cast your ballot for a Straight Republican ticket. To do this, all you need do is mark an "X" in the space opposite the word "Republican" where it appears on the ballot in black type, thus:

An Open Letter to the Residents of Hulmeville

The school board of Hulmeville favors the $13,000 bond issue and asks all voters to vote YES on November 6. Questions and answers concerning the bond issue are given below so that every one may become acquainted with the proposed High School which will be owned and operated by the school boards that enter into the building addition.

Who will own the new high school?

Hulmeville and the other districts will receive a deed written in favor of all of the districts entering the project. This will include the present high school grounds.

Who will operate the new school?

Action on all important matters such as the adoption of the budget, employment of teachers, enlargement of plant, etc., must be approved by a majority of each school board. At present Hulmeville must pay the tuition costs of its students but does not have anything to say about the high school.

What effect will the bond issue have on the tax rate?

It will not be raised.

What grades will remain at Hulmeville?

The first six. There will be no change in control of these grades.

How will the new joint Junior-Senior High benefit Hulmeville?

By taking the 7th and 8th grades out of the present building it will give us satisfactory room for the first six grades. This will mean no additional building program here in Hulmeville for some time to come. It will also help to keep the overhead of our building down.

If our bond issue is not approved what will it mean to Hulmeville?

It will mean a higher tax rate because our expenses will go up considerably. The expense of the 7th and 8th grades will be much higher here, and the pupils will not have the better facilities, and program which can only be offered at the larger Junior-Senior High School.

We will also be liable for $8 rent per pupil per year in the high school. The new state aid law definitely makes it desirable for tax payers and parents to send the 7th and 8th grades to the new Junior-Senior High School.

How will Hulmeville's share in the new addition be determined?

Each district will pay 4% of its assessed value.
